The information was taken from various existing samples and put together to minimize the effort required to put this example together. It may seem nonsensical, but it definitely shows the Actual use case. The Actual use case has the following characteristics:

1) It contains a mixture of paragraphs of text and tables of information,
2) The information MUST be viewed in a particular order to make sense,
3) There is typically a large volume of information, such as the "Management Discussion and Analysis",
4) The information can be unique to a company, no standard taxonomy concepts exist.
5) The information contains a mixture of "data" and "labels".

This example is intended to mimic the characteristics of the use case described above. It would likely be quite easy to find an example from a financial report which shows this use case in a form which is more comfortable to domain users (i.e., accountants). If the domain users would like this example updated to be more understandable to an accountant, we can put that together for them. But, this example is to show the characteristics of the use case with minimum effort, not to be 100% correct from a financial reporting perspective.
