

Understanding Query Basics

The SECXBRL.info repository provides a number of resources for querying the information contained in the repository. These resources are documented in the API which can be found here:

<https://app.secxbri.info/api> . The API documentation is the formal documentation for the syntax of query resources.

Resource Overview

- /entities.jq: Entities
- /filings.jq: Filings
- /components.jq: Components
- /factable-for-component.jq: Retrieve a Fact Table for a Component
- /modelstructure-for-component.jq: Retrieve a Model structure for a Component.
- /factable-for-report.jq: Retrieve a Fact Table for a Report
- /facts.jq: Retrieve Facts
- /report-elements.jq: Report Elements

Entities

POST /entities.jq

Retrieve information about all or a selection of entities

Request Parameters

Type	Name	Value	Description
	format	json csv xml excel	The result format
	tag	DOW30 SP500 FORTUNE100 PJI	A tag to filter
	cik		A CIK number

Additional documentation exists in the form of “Exports” on pretty much every page of the repository. Information that you see in the graphical user interface (GUI) can also be viewed in the form of computer readable information.

For example, if you go to the “filings” page of an entity such as MICROSOFT CORP as is shown below you can see the list of filings submitted by that entity. If you click on the blue “Export” button you see a number of computer readable formats which can be used to use this information directly from Excel or a software application.

Sample code is provided in the form of an Excel application which makes use of the XML version of the resources provided by the repository. You can find that Excel application here:

This document shows basic, but powerful, queries which can be used to obtain information for any entity, any filing, any filing component, and reported fact, or the model (representation) structure of the report.
